Scanner Reports 7-6-15

updated: Jul 06, 2015, 7:00 AM

Roger the Scanner Guy

Monday-Monday. This world is a crazy place and our country really seems like it's going to HELL. All this weird talk back and forth the worse thing one can do is get into a debate on the internet with someone who disagrees with you. People are going to troll, and be the way they are there is no changing them. When it comes down to it, I don't want to change anyone. I pretty much just want to stay the HELL away from everyone, I'm a hermit anyway. That said I got into it with a group of people on the internet one of them threatened to kill me. He not only said it in the thread but personally E-Mailed me and did it again. I really did not feel threatened until I realized he's kind of well-known. It's a proven fact that famous people get away with more scrap breaking the law than your average Bear. I got kinda shook up to tell you the truth. I reported him to a family member that is LE, but said just in case something happens to me. Because it's really my fault being stupid by getting into it on the internet with this guy. I don't plan on identifying him either so no TMZ for him. I'm not like that anyway. I was kinda bummed about the whole thing until I realized I wasn't talking to this guy anyway. He thought I was talking to him but I was totally referring to someone else. It became kinda funny after that. I personally E-mailed him back and told him that I wasn't talking to him it doesn't matter to me if I hear back from him or not. I feel like a real Dumb Ars for getting into it with a bunch of people I don't really know. It's like a game until someone gets angry, angry enough to personally e-mail you and threaten your life. The game isn't fun anymore. Then you realize you were not speaking to that person anyway and why are they threatening you? It's like one second you were dead meat and then you're alive again. That good feeling you get when you beat death then you realize you were not talking to that person anyway. Everyone is fighting nowadays too it seems not just on the internet but on the streets. Anyway the family member I told probably wrote to the guy and told him I'm 5150 and will eat his brains if he don't leave me alone. I could see him doing something like that. The whole thing is kinda like the drunk guy who told his friends "Watch this!" Then shot the fireworks off his head and died. It's not funny, but better him than me. I never did anything like that.

There was a guy in the Boys Home with me that went to do that flame thrower trick out of his mouth but he put too much lighter fluid in to do that and he kinda blew his head up or so it seemed. The burns were not that bad but all his hair was gone and his mouth was a little scorched. You know people do stupid stuff like that and everyone watching is high or drunk. It's hard not to laugh so not only does the person feel really stupid and they might die, everyone's laughing at them. All my friends were laughing at me when they saw what that guy wrote too, oh well.

Oh no - another drone.

The sky is falling!

I love the images & videos from these, so just keep them out of the SBA flight path. Right, John & Max? :-)

Isn't there a 4 mile no-fly zone for drones around airports?

COMMENT 627748 A H N O

I gave a transient a half-box of cheezits I had in my car and some dough a couple weeks ago. His sign said he was traveling and anything would help. He looked skinny and was with a skinny dog and it was so hot outside. Well he is still on the same corner so I guess I was duped. I was a sucker for the old pity the doggy trick!!!

748—Don't feel bad for having a heart and pitying the poor dog. I'm sure most have us have done the same thing.

Don't harden your heart, just give money to the organizations trying to help these people. Then you can just hand out a card saying.... Food Bank, this address... Rescue mission... their address... if they are really in need you've done your part, you directed them to where they can get help, and you've supported those organizations.

I used to giving money or gift certificates to street people... but now there are just too many.

Excellent idea, 753! Thanks - will give it a try.

COMMENT 627761 A H N O

There's a 5 mile no-fly zone around our airport (and most others). That applies to any R/C aircraft not only drones.

I've always been amazed how many homeless people have dogs. Dog food isn't cheap!

Where do the hounds sleep at night to stay away from fighting & wandering off while their owner catches some zzzz's?

What happens when the dog needs to see the vet? Does the owner plead pro bono assistance? If so, do the vets in town grow weary of this?

COMMENT 627767 A H N O

2015-07-06 01:14 PM

Wow, running people off the road with a dart gun?! What is wrong with those people?

COMMENT 627773 A H N O

2015-07-06 01:59 PM

765P- Most of the street kids with dogs don't take their dogs to the vet, nor themselves to the doctor. Despite this, if you talked to them about it most of them would tell you that they prioritize their dog's well being over their own. For many of them their dogs are their only companion and true friend- for as we all know, the loyalty and unconditional love found in a pet dog is unrivaled. Many young women living on the street have a large dog as a means of protection; it's not safe living on the street for anyone, and sexual abuse can occur to anyone regardless of sex or gender, but statistically women are more likely to get raped, and having a giant pet dog is a great deterrent to would-be rapists.

COMMENT 627778P

2015-07-06 02:33 PM

Maybe the young women should get jobs and get off the street instead of getting dogs for "safety", ya think?

COMMENT 627780P

2015-07-06 02:52 PM

765P here - What you say makes total sense 773. Thanks

COMMENT 627784

2015-07-06 03:08 PM

The homeless have dogs to keep them warm on cold nights.

COMMENT 627788

2015-07-06 03:22 PM

It is easy, coming from a place where you have no difficulties yourself in getting a job, to say what 778P says. It's easy to point your finger and say someone should try harder. I do it sometimes, seeing able bodied, healthy individuals begging in the street. It's frustrating, working long hours in a job you may not love, to barely eek out existence in SB, living paycheck to paycheck, and then get yelled at by someone who could be doing more for themselves, for not handing them your hard earned money.

But, if you have no address to receive mail, you can't get a PO box. Without a mailing address it is almost impossible to get employed. IF you could find a place to get cleaned up, wash your clothes, and get a job your lack of mailing address completely disqualifies you.

COMMENT 627791P

2015-07-06 03:30 PM

788 - I spent almost 2 years unemployed doing small piece-meal projects when ever I could find someone to give me work, ANY work.

These young "travelers" can easily find a buddy to room with (I know for a fact many are couch surfing here in town, trust me) and start working in any one of the many entry-level jobs around town.

Also, you don't need a mailing address to get work. I never once gave my address for the labor I did.

Roger,

This is not my business, but I think if someone has actually threatened harm to you via the Internet, and you KNOW who that person is, you should report it to the police, the District Attorney's office and to Edhat..

(Of course you need to have copied the relevant threat message so that you can verify what has happened.)

Either authority may well shrug it off - or may not. In any case you've alerted the appropriate people to the unacceptable behavior of someone who should be punished - or at least watched.

These days no one knows for sure whether threats will be acted on or not.

I believe the hard limit is 3 miles.....within 5 miles you are supposed to contact the tower before any RC flight.....pretty much eliminates all of Goleta until around Eling's park.

ROGER DODGER

2015-07-06 04:27 PM

The police don't care I know this because when I called them about the little girl crying and screaming next door they snatched me out for calling.. They don't care and I don't think they like me very much either and that's OK I'm FINE WITH THAT...The guy that threatened me did so on another website not Edhat and though it was a brutal manner of which to go I contemplate it depressed as hell having lost the love of my life Balistic Belinda..Then of course I let some real close friends and loved ones know about it. These are not the kind of people that will sit in court and watch the perp get probation sometimes justice has a way of being justified.. Thanks..

COMMENT 627855

2015-07-07 07:54 AM

I would think the 5 mile limit would also prevent flying R/C at Ellwood Bluffs or over by Faron Rd. Both are places I've seen people fly multiple times. Not saying it's right, just that it happened.

COMMENT 627856

2015-07-07 07:55 AM

The rules are fuzzy but in general the FAA says that if you want to operate a RC aircraft within 5 miles of a airport you must notify the tower and get a clearance. Now there is some talk about under 400 ft are OK unless the RC craft poses a danger to manned aircraft. There are also TFR's that must be considered well and other NOTAMs. In general flying RC aircraft is best done away from anything that would put someone in danger or call the cops.
